Doha exhibition to put spotlight on innovation in agri techniques

By Jenny Agualor

The 19th Qatar International Agricultural, Environmental and Irrigation (Agritech and Envirotech) Exhibition 2022, the Middle East’s largest exhibition held at the Doha Exhibition and Convention Centre (DECC), attracted a number of innovations in agricultural techniques, creating a platform to boost food security and sustainable development, organisations said.

The latest edition provides an opportunity for industry experts “to explore new equipment and related products, meet key decision-makers, gain valuable insights, and discover the latest practices.”

“Agritech and Envirotech is a gate to the horticulture companies to introduce their technologies to the private sector and consumers, and it has become the leading hub of trade in Qatar and the broader region,” according to DECC managing director Mansour Al-Mahmoud and Agritech managing director Nasser Al-Mahmoud.

As one of the participating companies, said, their stand will be focusing on greenhouse technology, crop management systems, irrigation systems, fertigation systems, hydroponic growing systems, aquaponic growing systems, mushroom production, fish farming, string farming, agricultural materials, and organic waste management.

Exhibitors are also expected to showcase the latest technologies and innovations in soil information, irrigated systems, plant production, and food production, among others. Under Agritech, a wide range of products and services, and systems will be highlighted, including recycling, alternative energy systems, waste management, water treatment, waste-to-energy, and more.

Organisers noted the “increasing interest in adopting advanced farming technologies and conducting government policies supporting domestic crop production, competing with global markets, and addressing the challenges of climate change and ways to preserve the environment, supporting and encouraging research towards sustainable technologies.”

According to the organiser, “providing strong support to the national development plan is one of the front-runners of Qatar’s priorities. As one of the first countries to ratify the United Nations Framework Convention on Climate Change in 1994, Qatar has been leading the commitment to addressing global environmental challenges.”

“Partnering with ICESCO, Qatar is an active partner in the international community to combat the climate crisis. The 2021 edition of the exhibition witnessed more than 310 exhibitors from 45 countries participating, besides attracting more than 8,000 local and international visitors, it also saw a 28% increase in the number of participants.”

“Organisers and the exhibition will continue to specialise business matching platforms to help exhibitors and visitors meet key decision-makers from the public and private sectors, through pre-engaged matchmaking, in discussion, potential opportunities and partnerships.”

Haydn Variations was written in 1873 and is a testament of Haydn’s mastery of the technique of variation. The variations are what Joseph Haydn, now called the ‘Father of Variation’, is famous for. Likewise, the variations are Haydn’s way of demonstrating his incredible compositional skills and his mastery of the art of writing music.

The Second Symphony describes a serene and joyful mood. Haydn’s Variations is based on a ‘Choral St. Antoni’, composed in 1875 at Törten in Germany.

After the successful premiere of Bruckner’s First Symphony in November 1870, the work was revised, and the Second Symphony was written in a single movement the following year.
