East-West/West-East sculpture: Qatar’s enticement in the desert

Internationally acclaimed artist Richard Serra’s East-West/West-East sculpture, a Qatar Museums (QM) project, is a creation like no other. This breathtaking sculpture in the Brouq nature reserve comprises four steel plates, each one 16.7m in height. A famous landmark in Qatar since its installation in 2014, the unique artwork out in the open desert is best visited during winter, given its location. It may be recalled that to guarantee perfect alignment, Serra examined the topography of the land and beautifully enhanced the vast, desolate space in the heart of the desert. The result is spectacular and truly contemporary, in tune with the times. The set of four standing steel plates were rolled in Germany, then offloaded, trucked, and craned into the location. It is his second public commission in Qatar — the first, a towering sculpture titled “7”, in the Museum of Islamic Art Park, is his tallest ever. The steel in both artworks will oxidise in the same way. Over the years, they have gone from gray to orange to brown, and are on their way to a dark amber, as Serra has conceptualised.

It is understood that two of the East-West/West-East plates stand 14.7m high and the others rise 16.7m above the ground. Still, because they are adjusted for the topography, they are all level with each other. As an art critic once wrote, during the hot temperatures of the summer, the pillars can absorb enough heat to cook scrambled eggs or even bake cookies. They are usually too hot to be touched. The pillars are breathtaking, erected to form a straight corridor between the rundown cliffs synonymous with the topography of the region. After a bout of vandalism and extensive restoration efforts, QM has posted warning signs on the way to the sculpture.

Coronavirus rages in Iraq as vaccinations lag

Protest against Palestinian families’ evacuation

Somalia extends election deadline to next month

The Italian news service published an article about tensions in the Middle East, particularly regarding the situation in Iraq and Somalia, highlighting the challenges faced in the region.

In Iraq, the article mentions the lack of vaccinations among the population, with fewer than 10 million people vaccinated, despite the high number of cases and deaths. The article highlights the reluctance of people to get vaccinated due to misinformation and mistrust in the healthcare system.

In Somalia, the article reports on the extension of the election deadline to the next month, due to the ongoing political crisis and the need for a more stable government.

The article also includes a section on the current situation in the Middle East, with a focus on the tensions in Iraq and Somalia, and the ongoing political crisis in the region.

The article concludes by emphasizing the need for a peaceful resolution to the conflicts in the region, as well as the importance of addressing the root causes of the tensions, such as economic instability and lack of development.

The article is written in English and is a part of a larger report on the current political and social situation in the Middle East.
UN rights chief seeks prosecution of Lanka war criminals

Headline: UN rights chief seeks prosecution of Lanka war criminals

Paragraphs:

- The UN rights chief has called on the Sri Lankan government to investigate credible allegations of war crimes committed during the country's 26-year civil war. Human Rights Michelle Bachelet, who has been critical of the Sri Lankan government for its human rights record, said that the country had a duty to hold accountable those responsible for human rights violations.

- Bachelet made the comments on the sidelines of an event in Colombo, when she met with Sri Lankan President Gotabaya Rajapaksa. She said that the UN Human Rights Council had repeatedly called for an independent, credible investigation into alleged war crimes.

- Bachelet said that the Sri Lankan government had ignored requests from the UN High Commissioner for Human Rights to conduct an investigation into alleged war crimes.

- She also called for a full investigation into the death of a British man who died during protests in Colombo last year, and for an end to the use of excessive force by police.

- Bachelet said that the Sri Lankan government should also address complaints of human rights violations by the military and security forces.

- Human rights groups have called for an independent, credible investigation into alleged war crimes during the country's civil war, which ended in 2009 after a government victory over the Tamil Tigers.

India eyes rupee trade accounts with Russia

Reuters

India is exploring ways to set up a rupee trade account with Russia to avoid sanctions on its energy purchases, two sources close to the matter said on Wednesday.

Under a previous round of sanctions announced by the West this month, Russia was cut off from the international financial system, making it complicated for Indian companies to buy Russian goods and services.

The sources said India was looking at setting up a rupee trade account with Russia, which would involve direct trading in rupees, a development that could tilt India towards reducing its exposure to the US dollar.

The rupee trade account was expected to enable the two countries to trade in rupees, reducing the need for the US dollar in bilateral trade.

India, which is heavily dependent on imports of oil and gas, has been looking for ways to reduce its exposure to the US dollar, which is the world's dominant reserve currency.

India's foreign ministry did not immediately respond to a Reuters query on the matter.

Indian students in Ukraine desperate to be rescued

Reuters

A group of about 200 Indian students, including 152 from Delhi University, was gathered at the Indian embassy in Kiev early on Thursday, sources close to the Indian government said, as Russian forces launched a full-scale invasion of Ukraine.

The group, which included medical students and chemists, had been demanding that the Indian government evacuate them from the country, where thousands of Indians have been stranded due to the war.

The Indian government has said it is trying to secure their safe evacuation and is working with the Ukrainian authorities to facilitate their return.

Talks with India on Russia ‘unresolved’, says Biden

Reuters

US President Joe Biden said on Thursday there were 'no indicators' of any immediate progress in talks with India on how to deal with Russia’s invasion of Ukraine.

Biden said there had been discussions on how to support the Indian economy, but that negotiations on other matters were ‘unresolved’.

India has been under growing pressure to cut its energy imports from Russia, but has so far resisted doing so, saying it needs to diversify its energy sources.

India ‘plans uae deal with Iran using rupee payments’

Bloomberg

India and the United Arab Emirates (UAE) are planning to conclude a deal involving rupee payments, a top UAE official said on Thursday.

The deal, which would involve India importing crude oil from the UAE, would be a significant shift away from dollars, the official said.

India, which is one of the world's biggest importers of oil, has been trying to reduce its dependence on dollar-based payments.

UK court hears man ‘confessed’ to 1974 bombing that killed 21

Gulf Times

A man confessed to a journalist on Wednesday that he had been involved in the 1974 bombing that killed 21 people in Birmingham, a case believed to be one of the most significant anti-terrorism cases in British history.

The unidentified man, who has been identified by media as James Ernest McAlpine, told the Daily Mail that he had admitted to the bombings.

The bombing killed 11 people and injured over 100 in Birmingham, making it one of the worst terrorist incidents in British history.

Congress party protests in Mumbai as Modi arrives in Russia

Gulf Times

Protests continued in Mumbai on Thursday as Prime Minister Narendra Modi arrived in Russia for the G20 summit and the BRICS summit.

Activists said they were demonstrating against Modi’s visit to Russia, which they saw as a sign of India’s growing ties with Russia.

Modi’s visit to Russia comes at a time when India is under increasing pressure to reduce its dependence on Russian weapons and technology.

India is one of Russia’s biggest customers for military equipment, and Modi’s visit is seen as a sign of India’s growing strategic partnership with Russia.
Qatar launch has been an initiative to plant tree farms in 2018 with a Q5bn budget to support initiatives on climate change and promoting environmental sustainability.

The aims are to support international efforts to combat climate change and enhance environmental sustainability, to reduce Qatar’s reliance on fossil fuels and cut the country’s carbon emissions, to provide food security, to support sustainable livelihoods and to provide access to clean drinking water.

Qatar Environment Day: making the country safe, healthy, for all

Qatar celebrates Qatar Environment Day on February 20 under the theme ‘Let’s think critically to improve the path towards the 2030 Agenda’ to emphasise the importance of a clean environment and sustainable societies which promote social and economic development.

The theme of Qatar Environment Day this year is intended to highlight the need for critical thinking and the role that individuals and societies must play in addressing environmental challenges and promoting sustainable development.

The event was officially launched on February 20, 2020, with a call to action for all Qataris to take action to protect the environment and promote sustainability.

The event was attended by Qatar’s Prime Minister and Minister of Interior, HE Sheikh Khalid bin Yusuf Al-Attiyah, and HE Minister of Environment and Climate Change, HE Dr. Mohammed bin Abdulrahman Al-Attiyah.

The launch of Qatar Environment Day comes ahead of the UN Climate Change Conference (COP26) in Glasgow, which takes place later this year.

Qatar is one of the few countries in the world that has set a target to achieve carbon neutrality by 2050, and the event aims to raise awareness and encourage action on climate change.

The celebration included a range of activities, such as tree-planting campaigns, environmental education programs, and awareness-raising initiatives.

The event was also an opportunity to highlight Qatar’s commitment to sustainable development and environmental protection.

US House of Representatives

The House of Representatives, a significant player in US governance, has a role in the legislative process of the US government. It is one of the two chambers of Congress, which is responsible for enacting laws. The House of Representatives has 435 members, each representing a district in the United States. Members of the House are elected every two years, and they serve two-year terms. The House of Representatives has a unique role in the legislative process, as it is responsible for initiating all revenue bills (tax bills) and has the power of the purse, which means it controls the federal budget. The House also has the responsibility of impeaching federal officials, and in recent years, it has been involved in several high-profile impeachment investigations, including those of former President Donald Trump and former President Bill Clinton.

PM Khan expresses concern over Ukraine at Putin meeting

The Prime Minister of Pakistan, Imran Khan, expressed concern over the situation in Ukraine during a meeting with Russian President Vladimir Putin in Moscow. Khan emphasized the importance of peaceful dialogue and negotiations to resolve the conflict. He also discussed the need for international cooperation to address the humanitarian crisis and the need for a comprehensive approach to regional security.

Russia's invasion of Ukraine has raised concerns about the future of the International Space Station (ISS) and the broader space exploration program. The International Space Station is a collaborative project between multiple countries, including the United States, Russia, Canada, Japan, and Europe. It is a significant achievement of international cooperation and has provided valuable insights into space travel and scientific research. The potential impact of the conflict in Ukraine on the ISS and space exploration activities is currently being closely monitored.

Russian specialists develop technologies for exploring the moon

Russian experts have developed technologies for exploring the moon, and this has been a significant achievement in the field of space exploration. The United States and China have also been involved in similar projects, and there is an increasing focus on lunar exploration as a way to advance scientific understanding and establish a presence on the moon. The potential for lunar exploration also has implications for long-term human space missions and the development of sustainable space habitats.
