Elgar looking to bow out on top

South Africa’s Elgar looking to bow out on top

Elgar will look to continue his international career after an unexpected captaincy role. David Bedingham, who was long regarded as a South African for a first Test, will take Elgar’s place in the side for the first Test.

Bedingham made an impressive Test debut in the first Test in Johannesburg. He scored 56 in the first innings and 75 in the second innings. His performances have earned him a place in the side for the second Test at Newlands.

Meanwhile, the South African team is gearing up for the second Test at Newlands tomorrow. The team is hopeful of getting the better of the top-ranked Indians in the series.

The second Test is a key match in the series, and the South Africans will be hoping to secure a series win. If they do, it will be a significant achievement for the team, who have not won a Test series against India in South Africa since 2011.

Elgar, who has long been associated with the side, has been a consistent performer for the team. He has been a vital member of the batting line-up, and his experience will be crucial for the team.

The second Test will be a crucial match for both teams. The winner of the Test will take a 1-0 lead in the series, and the loser will be under pressure to reclaim the Border Trophy.

Elgar’s form in the first Test was impressive, and he will be hoping to延续 his good form in the second Test. He has scored 126 runs in the first Test, and he will be hoping to continue his good form in the second Test.

The South African team is looking forward to the second Test, and they are hoping for a good result. The team is confident of their chances, and they are looking forward to the challenge ahead.

Warner retires from ODIs ahead of Test farewell

I’ve got to give back to the family and also on the back of that I’m definitely retiring from one-dayers as well

Australia’s Warner retires from ODIs ahead of Test farewell

Warner was described by Australia coach Andrew McDonald as the ‘best’

Warner, who has “gone out there and given everything” for Australia, has decided to retire from one-day cricket after scoring a century during the first Test in Cape Town.

Warner, who has been international cricket since 2005, said he was retiring from one-day cricket.

“I’ve got to give back to the family and also on the back of that I’m definitely retiring from one-day cricket as well. You know, I’ve had a few hundred 50s and 100s, some [had] 200s, but I’ve definitely had some other (Twenty20) poker nights,” Warner said.

Warner’s decision to retire from one-day cricket comes after scoring a century during the first Test in Cape Town. He said he had made a statement.

“Warner’s wonderful striking role not only played a vital role in many Australian victories,” he said.

Warner’s retirement from one-day cricket also paved the way for the selection of a new one-day team. The new team will be announced in the coming weeks.

Warner was the most capped one-day international cricketer, having represented Australia in 360 ODIs and 26 Twenty20 Internationals.

Former cycling world champion Melissa killed in car accident

By JEFFREY TULLO

Austrian Olympic track cyclist and former world champion Melissa died in a car accident on January 1 in the southern part of the country near the border with Italy. She was 33 and had just returned from the Mediterranean Games where she won two gold medals.

The accident occurred near the village of Adria, in the Styrian district, when Melissa was driving with her boyfriend and a friend. She was travelling at high speed and lost control of the car, hitting a wall and tree, and then overturning. She was rushed to hospital but died shortly afterwards.

Melissa was born in Austria in 1991 and began her cycling career at the age of 11. She won several national and international titles, including two Olympic gold medals in 2016 and 2020, and was a member of Austria's team that won the team time trial in the 2018 European Championships.

She had recently returned from the Mediterranean Games where she won two gold medals in the individual pursuit and team pursuit events. She was set to compete in the World Championships in April and the European Championships in June.

Melissa's death has left the cycling world in shock and has prompted calls for increased safety measures on the roads.

This Is Me - unscruellous and triumphs of tennis star Jabbar

By PATRICK HUGHES

Jabbar has been making headlines for all the wrong reasons this year. But as he prepares for the upcoming season, the tennis star is determined to make a comeback and reclaim his status as one of the sport's biggest names.

Jabbar's recent troubles began with his controversial comments about the Black Lives Matter movement. His comments sparked outrage and led to a period of self-reflection for the tennis star.

But Jabbar isn't letting his past mistakes define him. He's focused on the future and the work he needs to do to get back to the top.

"I know I made some mistakes in the past," said Jabbar. "But I'm committed to making amends and being a positive role model on and off the court."
